Chicken Fights on the Sly-Bound to Repay the Nickel-Small Boy's Disappointment-Offering Thanks.

There is a rather gay lot of firemen down at the No. 10 hose company's house, corner of Illinois and Merrill streets, and it is a matter of history among the members of the department that more real, genuine sport goes on at the little house located in the midst of the quiet Hebrew neighborhood than at any other quarters in the city. In the company is Tony O'Hara, who was knocked all to pieces in the Van Camp fire, but who is yet as full of good-natured mischief "as a dog is of fleas," in the vernacular of the department. Tony has an able ally in the shape of Jim Madden, the recognized society man of the entire department, and they are substantially backed by Jack O'Brien.

There is one man in the department who looks on this trio with dark suspicion, and without doubt he has excellent cause. Assistant Chief Barrett is an ardent chicken fancier, and his poultry-yard next door to the house is fairly, running over with the finest varieties of game chickens. In the rear lives a good old Irish gentleman whom the boys address as "Poppie" Ward, and who also owns a number of rare old lighters. "Poppie" and the assistant chief have long been fast friends, but it is said there is great danger of an estrangement now, on account of a series of early morning jokes by O'Hara, Madden and O'Brien. One night last week Barrett brought home a blooded game cock, which he carefully locked in the coop. That night, when the boys re-tired, there was a deal of whispering, and about 4 o'clock in the morning three darkrobed figures stole from the sleeping apartment and into the yard below. In a few minutes there was a frightened cackle in Barrett's chicken lot, and about the same time a similar sound emanated from "Poppie" Ward's barn yard. Then there was a silence for a while, but presently the Hebrew notion peddler across the street was awakened by a series of sounds that led him to believe the tens were giving a ban-

When Mr. Barrett walked out to his poultry yard two hours later he wondered if he was not standing on the scene of a recent bloody battle, and the sight of his fitteen-dollar game chicken, battle-scarred, shorn of plumage and hopping about on one leg, assured him that he had not erred. The battle had been fierce, as "Poppie" Ward's favorite fighter could also bear witness. At breakfast the boys were as innocent as childhood and the suspicions which had begun to gather in the chief's breast were dispelled. He bandaged up his chicken and spent the balance of the day administering arnica, but the next morning the boys enjoyed another and more spirited fight between the wounded gamesters, and were unfortunately caught in the act. Barrett has since set up all night watching his chickens, and "Poppie" threatens to sue

The financial transactions of many women are conducted after a plan which the mind of the average man finds difficult of comprehension. Debt rests upon their minds with a weight that is apt to be in inverse ratio to the amount involved. Five cents weighs as heavily upon their consciences as $5, but when the obligation mounts into the hundreds, or goes entirely past their power of liquidation, the burden becomes light as summer air and they cast it aside jauntily. It is in small matters, however, that their peculiarities are most noticeable. Men make merry over their ways at the soda fountains, and the fashion of half a dozen of them walking to the counter upon the suggestion of one and taking a "Dutch treat"-each paying for her own glass. Their fashion of disputing over the question as to which shall pay the fare when "two or three are gathered together" on the care has also served to point many jests. But there is a phase of the matter that has escaped the critical masculine attention. These same women who may accept tickets, and candy, and car fare, and lunches at the bands of men with no oppressive sense of obligation whatever, have a very different feeling when another woman pays the bill. For some mysterious reason they cannot bear to be indebted to other women. "What do you think of this?" said a well known Indianapolis lady a day or two ago. "I was on an Illinois street car and next arms and a shopping-bag full of packages. The conductor was coming and she was about to lay down her bundles and explore the depths of her bag for a nickel, so to save her trouble I paid her fare. She thanked me and I thought nothing more of it till this evening, when her servant came to my door and handed me 5 cents which Mrs. — said she owed me. For a moment I felt dreadfully insulted, and meant no offense. But if she had paid my fare I never would have dreamed of returning it, and what would she have thought are 'rum creeturs.' Last Tuesday night Senator Magee, the Cass county statesman, was in the city on a little matter of business, and found time to talk a few minutes with a friend at the Bates. Mr. Magee was in a talkative mood, which may seem rather strange to those who know him intimately, and, while comfortably reviewing a column of eigar smoke over his head, said several things, and, in his diffident way, made a few estimates casually. It was in the interesting part icy bit of refreshment that witty little man observed, with resonant smack of the that the drink was about as cold as an original Clevelander. "Speaking of the original Cleveland man," be resumed. with a retrospective air, "reminds me of a little play that took place one time in a game emment for its circle of distinguished participants. I think I was about the only man in the seance who had not acquired something of a national reputation as a statesman and an opener of brilliant 'jackers.' The play came up like this: The deal had passed twice around, with a corresponding surplus in the treasury of paper and current coin. J- B- passed, S-M-hesitated, I- P- G-dropped out atterly, and, to the surprise of everybody, 6- 8-, the dealer, opened the pot with a flourisb. S-M-trailed, as did I-P-G-. Cards were drawn, and the betting began, G- S- had not helped his hand, but bet it to the limit. made a proposition to save stakes. Then - called, and lo! I-P-Gsaw the first stab and went the limit again. Things bagan to get interesting when Gcame back with the limit raise, with M - trailing and Uncle I P of met. And just think of one man sending a message to his neighbor to pay a 5-cent street-ear debt! Certainly we women

- again rushing to the limit, and, forcing G - S -- to the ropes, he called. The hands, when spread to the table, showed up an old pair of jacks with G-. a little flush in the fist of S __ M_ and with Uncle Isaac, who had started with a pair of dences, nothing else on earth but four kings! This sounds strange, and was as strange as it sounds. What on earth Uncle Ike did with his dences was never known, and just exactly where he go! his kings is still a mystery. There was some curiosity evinced, however, when Uncle Ike and S-M-actually divided the pot. The man who opened the jack pot, gentleman, reminds me somehow of the original Cleveland 'man.' Theu it da wned upon the group that Senator Magee was simply giving them a literal patronage in Indiana. A few weeks since the Cadi became impressed with the idea that he was carrying around with him a superfluous quantity of flesh, and concluded that he would feel a Miller. 25 cents; William Basse; 25 cents;

tle parable about the distribution of fed-

tary and that he needed exercise. The Cadi purchased a pair of twelve-pound Indian clubs and a pair of dumb-bells, and mapped out his plan of exercise. He suddenly took to early rising, and every morning before breakfast engaged in a clubswinging drill and exercise with the dumb

The first morning the flesh reducing operations were begun a chandelier was smashed by one of the clubs in the hands of the Cadi. After a few mornings Mrs. Buskirk objected and the Cadı was compelled to repair to the back yard with his gymnastic performances. He kept at it faithfully, however, fully determined to get rid of some of that flesh before warm weather was upon him. As an act of supererogation or something of that sort he began walking from his home on College avenue to and from his office in the courthouse. At the end of about three weeks time he began to feel like a new man, and was wholly satisfied with the result of his exercising, and went to have himself weighed. The result was truly startling. He had gained seventeen and a half pounds during the three weeks he had been exercising. The Indian clubs were disposed of to a second-hand dealer, and the dumb-bells sold for old iron, and the Cadi will hereafter leave nature to reduce or add flesh as she may see fit.

Mr. Will Garber, court stenographer, has a young son who has arrived at that age when the angelic traits which once made the fond father's beart beat with joy over the amiable promise of his offspring seem rapidly disappearing to give place to a development of less admirable but very buman attributes. Among other peculiarities that cause some paternal anxiety is the indisposition of the youth to engage in intellectual pursuits and his propensity for taking part in "scrapping matches." Last Suaday afternoon, partly as a means of discipline and partly that he might be kept out of mischief, he was required, sorely against his will, to remain in the house and read. He went to the bookcase reluctantly and slowly read the titles aloud with scorn and discontent in his voice. At last came an exclamation of pleasure: "Short Fights! Bully!" And taking a small green and gold volume in his hand, he sank into a chair with an expression of beatilic joy on his chubby face beantiful to behold. The gradual fading of that hopeful look into one of deep disgust and disappointment affected the watchful parent almost to tears. In all Meredith Nicholson's "Short Flights" there was not, ajas, an account of a single

Echoes of Easter, of one sort and another, are still affoat. One comes from a church not a mile distant from the Journal office. It is a wealthy church, but whispers are affoat that all is not harmonious in its inner circles; that, in fact, the pastor is not beloved by his congregation to the degree which leads to a liberal disbursement of funds for his gratification. He is rather fond of lavish floral displays, and in the early days of his pastorate pulpit embellishments of this sort were profuse and frequent. Recently such decorations have not been seen there. On Easter Sunday the pulpit was bare. The pastor offered prayer and expressed gratitude for blessings vouchated. "We thank Thee, Lord," he said, "for the beauty of this blessed day; we thank Thee that so large an assemblage of worshipers has gathered together before Thee; we thank Thee for the gift of the Son; we thank Thee for all favors granted: we would offer thanks for lilies, if any were here, but lilies are too ex-

The sensation which passed over the congregation at this moment was not entirely godly, but such as it was, it has not wholly subsided even yet.

That was rather a suggestive remark made by an Indianapolis lady who favors the proposition to open the art exhibit on Sundays. "Do you think they will do it?" she inquired anxiously of a man supposed to know something of the workings of the associated-art mind. "There is no such probability," he replied. "The managers are too much afraid of going contrary to what they imagine to be public sentiment." "But at least," said the lady, "they might do as much as the saloons and open the "Here," as the "educator from the East" is wont to remark, "here, dear friends, is Traveling Men Making a Successful Effort-Chairman Loeper's Committee at Work-Meeting to Consider Grounds Offered.

High-water mark was reached yesterday in the Commercial Club's work of raising subscriptions to the G. A. R. National Encampment fund. The total amount reported at the office during the day was nearly $2,000, making the largest amount in any one day since the beginning of the was on the point of sending back a sharp | canvass. Among the members of the club message, but I reflected that she probably | who either subscribed or secured $50 or more were Mesers. Jacob Metzger, George E. Field, Albert E. Metzger, A. II. Snow. Kopp. in addition to these good lists were reported by A. Stefflin, Dr. Allison Maxwell and L. F. Buschman. The work is being vigor-

A meeting of traveling men was held in the Commercial Club rooms at 4 o'clock, and reports were submitted by a number to Chairman Ben L. Webb. Sixty subscriptions were added to the fund being raised from among the traveling men, making the total amount $99. It was decided to continue the work vigorously, with the determination of adding several hundred dollars to it. The committee desires that a good showing shall be made by the traveling men, and, while they are asking only $1 from each one, they hope to have every man representing an Indianapolis house enrolled in the list. They will hold another meeting at Colonel Lilly's office, in the Commercial Club Building, next Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, when they hope to have a large number of additional Jacob W. Loeper, chairman of the com-mittee on wholesale and retail liquor interests, also reported a number of subscriptions yesterday, showing that the work of his committee has started off well. Mr. Losper states that there were many subscriptions taken by his committee which have not yet been reported to him. A large amount of additional subscriptions are expected from this source. The committee on buildings and grounds of the encampment organization will meet at the headquarters of the citizens' executive board, in the Commercial Club Building, to-morrow morning, 4: 10:30 o'clock. The meeting will be held specially for the purpose of taking steps toward securing the reservation of grounds to be used for camps during the encampment.

SATURDAY NIGHT THIEVES.

Overcoats Stolen from Bates House Billiard Room Recovered-Farr-II and Dummy.

Detectives Kinney and Richards last night arrested two men giving the names of Thomas Allen and William Harrold on the charge of grand larceny. Five overcoats, three valises and two umbrellas were found in possession of the men, two of the coats being identified as the property of Martin Shaffer, of Blake street, and Thos. Fontain, of State street. The overcoats were taken from the Bates House billiard parlor early in the evening, with three others. The theft was detected by a young man who was engaged in playing billiards, and who followed the men around the streets and saw them go to a room over the George restaurant, at No. 109 East Washington street. The detectives were also looking for the thieves, and entered the oom as the men were preparing to pack the stolen goods. Both denied that the articles belonged to them, and claimed that they found them in the room. They say they came here from Minneapolis on Friday. The three valises are thought to be those stolen from the Union Station yesterday. One of them contained several small files and a wrench, and the others were filled with underclothing.

Patrick Farrell, a young man enjoying the proud distinction of hailing from Cincinnati, fell into the arms of detectives Kinney and Richards last night in rather a peculiar manner. Richards was passing offerings of good wheat at the West, rallied the Eagle clothing store last night | se on local covering and closed weak at 12 when his attention was attracted by a nobby overcoat worn by a stylish-appearing dummy outside the store. Mr. Farrell was sans greatcoat, and bethought himself of the rare opportunity. Deliberately unbuttoning the garment from the shapely figure he had it on his back in a truce, and was proudly stalking away when the officers, who happened to be near, caught him. He was locked up on a charge of petit

The satchel contained 15 cents, a crochet needle and a pair of gold spectacles. James McLain, a Big Four firemen, complains that he took a starving machinist to his boarding house, No. 56 Bates street. on Friday, and after feeding and allowing him the use of his room, the ingrate ran away last night with his best coat and vest. The Plunger Turns Bullish on July Wheat, but the Price Is Forced Down.

The Clique Attempted to Dispose of May Wheat, but there Were No Buyers, and the Price Sagged Off. Closing at 7814c.

TRADING AT CHICAGO.

Provisions Weakened and Pork, Lard and

Ribs Declined, CHICAGO, April 15 .- July wheat was dumped to-day. Millions of bushels were sold by the clique. The close was weak at inside prices, a decline of 2c compared with last night. It is reported that Pardridge turned bull on July wheat yesterday and was a heavy buyer. Part of the gossip was that he knew the clique to be short of that month and was taking advantage of the situation to force prices up and give them a dose of the medicine administered to him. But the clique seems to have turned on him, and to-day it had nearly all the selling, and while the legitimate situation appeared quite as strong as yesterday, they succeeded in forcing the price down from start to finish. The general opinion is that Pardridge has been whipsawed. The clique found it impossible to dispose of any May. And no one else being inclined to sell it, it was comparatively neglected. It closed at a decline since yesterday of 4c per bushel. It is estimated that the visible supply will show a decrease of about 1,000,000 bushels. Corn was dull but steady, fluctuations being limited to fractional range, with trading confined to local room operators almost exclusively. Considering the tone of wheat the market ruled comparatively ing of about 100,000 bushels of July corn by one of the larger commission concerns, who in turn sold considerable May. The close was 'se under last night's figures There was a fair trade in oats and an easier feeling for the near futures, but steady for eptember. There also was some chanki the way of selling May and buying the distant months. At the close May showed a net loss of 4c. June of 4c and July of 4c. but September was unchanged. Hog products were weak and decidedly lower. There was but little demand and the big leaders raided the market. Compared with yesterday's closing prices May pork is 27 2c lower, lard is from . 10cto . 12/2c lower and ribs from .0742c to.1243c. The new rule about the closing of the Saturday session of the board at 12 o'clock from now to October 31 had its first obsevance to-day. The estimated receipts of hogs for Monday are 20,000 head; 100,000 are expected to arrive during next week. There are no estimates cited on grain. The leading fu-

Tem. Normal C. F. R. WAPPENHANS, Local Forecast Official. Severe Snowstorms.

NEW YORK, April 15 .- Dispatches from the northern part of this State and the lake region of Ohio state that severe snowstorms prevailed to-day. Yesterday morning the people of Watertown, N. Y., were raking dried leaves from their yards and gutters and burning them in bonfires: street sprinklers were at work, and crocuses and violets were in bloom. Yesterday afternoon snow began to fall and has continued there ever since, with no immediate prospect of ceasing. The thermome-

He Had Evidence.

The man had been to see a prestidigitateur and when he came home he was telling his wife about it. "One of his acts," he said, "was to cut a woman's head off right on the stage in front of all of us." "Pshaw," she protested, "he didn't out her head off." "Yes, he did, too. I saw him, and he carried it over to a pedestal and it began talk-"How do you know it was a woman?"

"Didn't I see her?" "It might have been a man or a boy dressed like a woman. "No, it wasn't, either, I tell you. It was a woman. Didn't I say it kept on talking after its head was cut off"

Railway Issues Are Duil and Weak with Sales Down to $343,000. At New York, Saturday, money on call

Prime mercantile paper, 64 @8 per cent. Sterling exchange was firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86% for sixty days, and $4.18 for demand.

The total sales of stocks were 124,500 shares, including the following: Chicago Gas, 4,200; Distilling, 10,600; Missouri Pacific, 5,400; National Cordage, 3,800; New England, 14,800; Northern Pacific preferred, 8,200; Reading, 3,700; Richmond Terminal, 7,600; St. Paul, 6,500; Sugar, 12,300; Western Union, 5,700.

The stock market was weak and lower Saturday. Dealings were purely professional, and the fact that the selling was mainly for the short account was shown by the active borrowing demand for West ern Union, Missouri Pacific and some of the industrial shares. The drop of 14 in Western Union was based on the passage of the anti-pool bill by the Legislature at Albany. The company has hitherto enjoyed a large revenue from the transmission of telegrams in connection with the races. The bank statement was so much better than expected that a general rally ensued, but the rise was not fully maitained in the final dealings. Nevertheless the last prices were is to 4 per cent. above the lowest. The bears were encouraged in their attacks on the market by the talk of heavy gold shipments on Tuesday next, estimated at from $2,000,000 to $3,500,000. Nothing definite is known in regard to the matter yet, but, according to bankers who do most of the shipping, the exports will probably be within the two million mark. The bears continue to lay stress upon the probability that the treasury gold reserve of one hun-dred millions will have to be drawn on, but in quarters usually well informed the belief obtains that if such a condition arise it will have nothing more than a passing effect. The prospects of a heavy railroad traffic at paying rates during the progress of the world's fair, and the tide of travel from Europe to this side, are relied on to make sentiment in favor of the bull side. The transactions aggregated 121,488 shares, and the market closed somewhat steadier in

LUCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE. The Trade of the Week Disappointing, with Few Fluctuations in Vilues. The trade of the week ending April 15 did not come up to expectations, which is attributed to the fact that there were two days of unusually cold, rainy weather. The changes in values were not numerous. Coffees, roasted grades, are le lower than a week ago and eggs 10 higher. Lemons have advanced 50c per box. Onion sets are scare and higher and poultry easy at quotations. Provisions have taken on a steady tone, but the range is too high to admit of there being an active demand. Several lines of dry goods are a shade lower than a week ago and the tone of the dry-goods market generally is not so firm as thirty days ago. The flour market is fairly active for a spring month and prices a shade higher than at the corresponding period last year.

They Are "Sooners."

There are several candidates for the governorship of Oklahoma now in town, and they are wrangling, as office seekers will always wrangle. They prefer against each other a charge that is new in Washington. When one of them wishes to convince that the other is anathema maranatha he whispers that his opponent is a "sooner." A 'sooner," the American public has come to understand, is a man who entered the Territory and acquired a house lot or two somewhat in advance of the hour set for opening of the land by presidential proclamation. Out in Oklahoma it is a very dreadful thing to say. On account of a too free use of the term men have been known to fulfill their dream and pass over the divide with their boots on. In the East it hardly excites such wrath and condemnation. It is related that when a candidate to be Governor of Oklahoma informed Mr. Cieveland with dreadful emphasis that the other was a "sooner" the President smiled amusedly, much to the astonishment of his visitor, who will be forced to regard the President from this time on as a man devoid of all human feel-
